

Beth H. Goldsmith

Harold Goldsmith's life was cut short in a small plane crash near Aspen, Colorado, in 1991. His tragic death had an enormous impact on his family and on all who knew him. But it is his life and the lessons he taught us that have made an even more indelible impression. He brought me into The Associated family as soon as we began dating, and our honeymoon was shared with 65 other Baltimoreans on a mission to Egypt and Israel. Harold started me on the road to learning and service through The Associated and encouraged me always to continue on that path.

Upon his death, wishing him to be "forever present," his children and I chose to perpetuate his campaign gift through the Supporting Foundation he created at The Associated. As the Goldsmith Foundation has grown, so have our family gift and our commitment to the philanthropy of time, as well as money, that are his legacy to us.

As I follow in his footsteps and assume the leadership of the 2012 campaign, it is my honor and my privilege to also perpetuate my gift. Harold inspired and encouraged all of those who knew him. It is our challenge to fulfill his dreams and to accomplish all that he envisioned for us.
